Please pay attention to your appointment letter. Your scan may be performed at either Wigan Royal Albert Edward Infirmary, Wrightington Hospital or Leigh Infirmary. If you attend the wrong site, you will likely be turned away without a scan.

What is a CT scan?

It is a diagnostic test, which uses x-rays to produce very detailed pictures of the body.

What does the scanner look like?

A picture of the scanner is shown below. The scanner is open at both ends and you can speak to the staff at all times. You will be asked to lie on a bed which will move slowly through the scanner whilst it takes the pictures.

What will happen during the scan?

- Depending on your condition an injection of x-ray dye may be required to provide clearer pictures. A Radiographer or Radiologist will give you the injection, if required
- The Radiographer will not be able to stay with you in the scan room but can see and hear you at all times
- You will be asked to lie still and may need to hold your breath at times during the scan
- The scan will normally take between 10 to 20 minutes

If you have any comments or questions, please do not hesitate to ask the Radiographer.

What happens after the scan?

- If you have had the injection of dye during the scan, you will be asked to wait in the department for up to half an hour after the scan. In addition, you will be given information regarding drinking increased fluids for the next 24 hours to help with rehydration
- Otherwise, once you have left the department, you can eat and drink as normal

When will I get the results?

The Radiologist will need to study your scans carefully to make the diagnosis. They will produce a written report of their findings, which will be sent to the doctor who referred you for the scan.

Are there any risks involved?

- The scanner uses x-rays to produce the scans. The Radiologist will consider the risk of the scan and compare it with the benefit you may get from an accurate diagnosis
- There is a small risk of an allergic reaction with the injection of dye you may be given. The Radiographer will ask you a series of medical questions before the injection is given
- If you think that you may be pregnant you must tell the Radiographer

When you arrive at the hospital

Please follow the directions to the Radiology or X-ray department and report to the main reception desk.

Please note it is occasionally necessary to delay your appointment time if the scanner is required in an emergency.

Who will look after you during the scan?

A team of staff will care for you in the radiology department.

Reception staff	will meet and greet you
X-ray Assistant	will help you to prepare for your scan
Radiographer	will perform the scan and care for you in the scan room
Radiologist	will examine the scan pictures and make a report or diagnosis

Ask 3 Questions

Become more involved in decisions about your healthcare. You may be asked to make choices about your treatment. To begin with, try to make sure you get the answers to three key questions:

1. What are my options?
2. What are the positives and negatives of each option for me?
3. How do I get support to help me make a decision that is right for me?
